GAME WITH HEARNE GOES ON

"Our Town" by J. B. WHITE

At the tenth national convention of the Future Farmers of America held in Kansas City last month, representatives of more than 200,000 vocational agricultural students throughout the nation attended and took part in the contests.

Among the contest judges were Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior; Philip S. Rose, editor of the Country Gentleman, and Dr. Willard E. Givens, executive secretary of the National Education Association.

The highest award bestowed at the convention went to Robert L. Bristoe of Saluda, Va., who was designated Star Farmer of America in competition with 100 candidates selected by the various state organizations and F. F. A. chapters.

Regional Star Farmer awards were won by Lex J. Murray of Santa Rosa, Calif.; Ralph Davis of Napton, Mo., and William Stiers of Alexandria. Many additional awards were made to individuals, local chapters and state associations for outstanding records in F. F. A. work.

The annual conventions of the organization, which are held at the same time as the Royal Livestock Show, have become the most notable events for young farmers in the history of American agriculture.

There is no doubt that the financial plight in which many states find themselves has been caused largely by the making of appropriations to match Federal aid for road building and other projects. While the building of roads is a highly commendable proceeding, the fact is that the states have bankrupted themselves by going too fast, spurred by the temptation of Federal aid.

The states have eagerly swallowed this bait, apparently looking upon the Federal money as a gift from heaven. But, as every sensible person might have readily seen, these Federal sums had to come from the pockets of the public, just as the state funds do.

In other words, the government says: Uncle Sam will tax you a billion dollars for roads, provided you allow your state governments to tax you another billion. And the pork barrel politicians tell you how generous Uncle Sam is—with your own money.

Of course, if Uncle Sam is going to tax the states for their pro rata of the Federal hightway fund anyway, each state government feels that it must impose a tax on its own

MARY RICHTER WILL SURVIVE INJURIES

Reports late Wednesday indicated that Miss Mary Richter, Cameron girl, injured in an auto mishap in Cameron Sunday afternoon, will recover.

She was suffering from cuts about the head, shock and slight concussion.

The accident occured near the Southern Pacific Depot while the car in which Miss Richter was riding proceeded along West Main. Another car driven by an unidentified negro who is said to live on a farm near Cameron, struck the Mikula car as it emerged without brakes from a side street.

In the car with Miss Richter were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Mikula and Miss Frances Hughes. The Mikula machine was thrown from the street into a ditch and badly wrecked. All occupants escaped serious injury except Miss Richter.

Miss Richter is employed at the Gohmert Variety Store, Miss Hughes at the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company and Mr. Mikula with the Grabein Chevrolet Company.

100,000 Turkeys Marketed in City

It was estimated by a trade representative here today that one hundred thousand turkeys had been marketed in Cameron since the opening of the Thanksgiving market.

It was also said that this figure represents only a fair percentage of the total of birds raised this year.

The December or Christmas market is due to open next week. Many birds were turned back to be fed for the December market. Turkeys sold on the Thanksgiving market brought 13c. This market indicate that turkeys sold here have brought producers about $150,000.

Most of the turkeys have been sold from Milam county farms. A small per cent came from adjoining counties, Cameron being a good market center for poultry and produce.

Milam county turkeys were in the main not ready for the market and this indicates the December sales will be large.

November Snow Blankets Cameron

Cameron's first November snow storm swept in from the Panhandle of Texas early Monday.

Before nightfall five inches had fallen and the city was locked in winter's white embrace. Freezing temperatures continued from mid-morning until early Wednesday and a north wind whipped the surface snow into white sheets while hundreds walked about to enjoy this seldom seen weather phenomena in Cameron.

By noon Wednesday the fall had melted from the streets but snow still lay white and deep in protected places and several days will pass before the last of it melts.

Damage to streets and roads may be heavy when the final toll is taken. The snow fall will be greatly beneficial to broken farm lands.

AD HALL TO REBUILD SCHOOL HOUSE AT ONCE

Trustees of the Ad Hall school met in Cameron Tuesday and made plans to rebuild the plant destroyed by fire early Monday afternoon.

It was said that the building and fixtures were insured for $6000. This amount will not cover the loss but plans are going ahead rapidly for rebuilding the school.

From the ashes of the completely destroyed school building Monday sprang courage and determination. The faculty under Creel Bridewater found the people of the community more than willing to co-operate and school was resumed this week in the homes of patrons and this arrangement will continue until the building is replaced.

Cameron school authorities and the Superintendent E. A. Perrin tendered the Ad Hall School board the facilities of the Cameron schools and offered to make a place in the school for the pupils for the remainder of the term. The board at Ad Hall decided to go forward with another building at once.

Fire which destroyed the building is believed to have started in the roof from a defective flue. When discovered the roof was in flames. Cameron's fire department made an attempt to reach the school but a violent snow storm hampered the drive. The building was almost totally destroyed.

Pupils were taken to safety in orderly procession by teachers. No injuries have been reported.

The trustees are Homer Allen, Frank A. Winkler and Joe L. Gerick.

20 Per Cent City's Population ask for Employment

Twenty per cent of Cameron's population returned cards to Postmaster J. R. Hays, it was disclosed here Saturday when final hour struck to end the nation's poll of the unemployed.

Cameron has a population of some 5000 and according to Mr. Hays the total will run around 1000 or more.

The census of the unemployed polled three divisions of the people who work: those totally unemployed, those employed part time and those employed who desire more and better employment.

The job was done in record time by postal employes under the postmaster. Only 4 days were allowed to complete the census throughout America.

The Congress now in session was expected to be guided somewhat by the poll in whatever employment legislation it sought to enact.

Generally the census is understood but there are a few exceptions. It was not probable that the government would be able to furnish work for the nation's jobless. Many here who signed the cards believed the government would soon give them jobs at good pay, a few believing the cards indicated a check would soon be forthcoming from Washington.

Mr. Hays was grateful to the people for their co-operation. The cards were filled out at the office of the Chamber of Commerce and also by Dan Tyson, city secretary, thus aiding the four day poll.

Cameron Has Real Weather Man; F. G. Blake Says Cameron "Cold Spot" Of State

Here's a bit of interesting information about Cameron weather.

F. G. Blake of the Coca Cola Bottling Company, has a special radio set on which he gets reports. In his business, he must know his weather. Mr. Blake knows weather conditions each hour of the day and keeps in close touch with these broadcasts. He knew the blizzard was coming 18 hours ahead.

Tuesday night when the temperature registered 33 degrees in Cameron the themometer had risen to 42 degrees in Amarillo. In the vicinity of Waco and Cameron the coldest weather of the week was recorded. "It was a cold spot," said Mr. Blake. Barometer readings west and north Tuesday night were high, indicating fair and warmer for the remainder of the week.

Abnormal pressure conditions west and north caused the "cold spot" and blizzard concentration in Central Texas.

Snow did not fall south of Bryan. In Houston the reading was 45 degrees Tuesday night. San Antonio had balmy weather. There was no snow in Austin. The storm swept west into Tennessee and thence thru east Texas and veered west after 'concentrating' in the vicinity of Waco.

SUNSHINE IS DECIDING ELEMENT WEDNESDAY

Sunshine Wednesday morning found Coach Wood and his Athletic Council preparing for the game with Hearne Wednesday night.

A decision was reached Wednesday morning to play the game as scheduled. Weather conditions were thought Tuesday to be too bad to insure the game.

The game has been scheduled since the beginning of the season. It was hoped the game would result in financial benefit to both clubs. What the re-action would be was difficult to tell.

One thing was certain, the game would be played Wednesday night on Yoemen field.

HOLIDAY CROWDS TO COLLEGE THURSDAY

College Station, Texas Nov. 22.—Primped to the hilt for its biennial assignment as Mecca of Southwest grid fans, this little college town stands ready for the crowd of 30,000 or more which will jam it for two days in connection with the annual Texas Aggie-University of Texas Longhorn Thanksgiving Day football game.

Kickoff for the tilt is slated for 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, but the chills and thrills of a big-game program will begin a full day earlier.

Football pageantry, great gobs of it, is packed and ready to explode on the Aggie campus beginning early Wednesday afternoon. The only ones not quite ready, perhaps, are the excited Aggie freshmem, who still scurry about the countryside picking up bonfire material or tacking up bright banners about the campus.

Football games of most colleges cause commotion on game day only in the city's business and stadium area. But Texas A & M College is College Station, and every inch of its area will live football and its accompanying color.

Nine special trains and thousands of automobiles will pour forth their quota of fans. Four special trains will be run from Austin, home of the Longhorns. Two will come from Houston and one each will run from

I got into Washington Monday morning and found the usual wet, cold dreary Washington winter weather, but things have been far from cold or quiet in the Capitol. It is true that no bills have been passed this week but there has been much discussion of many subjects both on and off of the floor. The Senate has had and still has a filibuster in progress intended to prevent the consideration of the Anti-Lynching Bill until an agriculture bill is brought in by the Committee, which should be next Monday. No legislation can be considered in either House until reported by a Committee and then in the House of Representatives any bill must get a favorable report from the Rules Committee giving it a 'rule' or an allocation of time for discussion.

No farm bill has been reported by the Committee of either House as yet although the Senate Committee promises to have one out by Monday. There has been considerable criticism of the President by the Republicans for calling the session before these bills were ready. Some of the Democrats have, on the other hand, criticised the Agracultural Committees for not having bills ready. For my part, I do not feel like criticizing either. The President undoubtedly felt that by calling Congress he would expedite the framing of a farm bill and while the Agricultural Committees have been working long and hard to get together on a farm bill ever since we adjourned last August, I can realize how difficult it is to agree on any measure that has to fit all sections of the nation and all branches of agriculture. In fact we all know that the cotton farmers of one Texas County can't agree among themselves, and their interests are all about the same. Think then how hard it is to draw a bill that will suit the cotton farmer of the Old South and of California as well as of Texas and at the same time suit the potato farmers of Maine and the wheat farmers of the far West. And at the same time remembers that unless we satisfy the industrial sections of the nation, who buy rather than sell agricultural products, we can't get enough votes in Congress to pass any farm bill.

When we stop to think of these things we must sympathize with the Committees in their efforts to work out a bill and we must better understand the reason for delay. No one wants delay. Everyone realizes that whatever is done should be done quickly but everyone must hope that we can pass a bill that will be more than a stop-gap. It should outline a sound long time policy. However, the present business recession makes it even more difficult to secure the necessary money with which to finance such a program and makes me feel that it is all the more desirable that we turn from an impossible effort to support world price to a conservative program of soil conservation along with a pegged domestic price on our Cotton, guaranteeing our farmers a fair price on all cotton used in the United States but inviting no new taxes or subsidies.

However, I expect to support the farm bill whether it is just what I want or not. I realize that it is not at all likely that we will be able to get just what I think best or what any one else thinks best. I know we are all gaing to have to make some concessions and I am ready to do my part. I am working on an allotment plan that I believe would get the greatest possible income for the South with a provision to encourage the faimly size farm and to keep the greatest possible number of people at work. I hope we will not overlook the fact in framing the bill that the government must consider the needs of the day laborer as well as the land owner and that we must make it profitable to keep the largest number of malities on the farm and to use the largest amount of labor consistent with a maximum income to the South. Along with these provisions should go and I believe will go a change in the method of arriving at a base acreage. In the past we have penalized the man who diversified and rewarded the man who had planted all cotton. This was wrong. Whatever bill is passed, I am convinced that this should and will be corrected.

REAL RECOVERY

(Editor's not: This article is published as a news item and represents the personal views of Mr. Ferguson only.)

The worst reception is when we deceive ourselves. Our greatest danger is in blindly believing that which we want to believe without facts to prove our belief.

The people of these United States ought never to believe that they are on the road to recovery until the proof is evident and unmistakable. The often used statement that "prosperity is just around the corner" will afflict us with great disappointment if our belief should prove untrue.

In times past, we have too often counted our chickens before they hatched to our personal sorrow.

What we need now is a recovery that is already turned the corner our way. We should give ourselves the benefit of facts instead of letting a pipe dream or something which we want to come to pass.

What the American people should now do is to make a clean cut conscience statement to themselves, and see if we are yet on the road to financial recovery. Every intelligent citizen who claims to be intelligent should make final entries in his personal ledger and see if he can balance his own budget—that is can you pay your debts or do you have as much owing to you as you owe others? If neither of these propositions are true, then you are out of balance and prosperity present or prospective has not overtaken you yet. Prosperity just around the corner will not do you any good and it will be dangerous for you to believe that recovery exisits which may never show up.

Maybe you are a bad risk and a bad manager, and the lack of recovery should not be laid at the door of one personal failure. Granted. But suppose your case turns out to be like most everybody else? Then your condition may be a typical example that recovery has not yet come.

Ask ten of your friends, who will in many instances be willing to talk, if their condition is as good as it was a year ago. Ask them if they can pay their debts. Ask them if the people who owe them can pay. Ask them if they can balance their own budget. It is not necessary for me to tell you what the great majority of these ten friends will tell you. What I want is to get you to find out if we are on the road to recovery. If we are not, the sooner we find it out the better, and we will learn that we had better get on the economy wagon and quit deceiving ourselves.

Is your home town as well off as it was even a year ago? Is your county in as good financial condition as it was a year ago? To ask if your state is as well off as it was two years ago is but to laugh. Twenty millions in the red, warrants being discounted, pensioners by the thousands unpaid, state obligations unperformed, taxes growing higher and higher, crime wave and labor troubles everywhere and uncontrolled, yea, brother, what did you say about prosperity around the corner? We can expect that old hobgoblin will stay behind that corner for a long, long time.

Is Uncle Sam hiding behind the corner with a sack full of prosperity that is going to soon be emptied on a nation of people that are being asked to believe something because they want to believe it? Read the record

Opera Star Comes To Cameron Theatre Tuesday and Wed.

Jail is one of the last places one would expect a romance to bloom. However, that is where Cupid first aims his dart at Nino Martini and Joan Fontaine, in "Music for Madame," at the Cameron Theatre Tuesday and Wednesday.

Martini plays an ambitious Italian singer who has dropped into bad hands on reaching Hollywood to forward his career. In fact, he becomes the pawn of a clever gang of crooks who have pulled a half million dollar gem robbery at a wedding reception. When he goes to the police station to surrender and clear his name, he meets Joan, who is a young composer and who also ran into difficulty when she crashed the party.

Martini, star, is teamed for the first time with Miss Fontaine, who is considered one of the most important Hollywood discoveries of the year.

Martini's voice, which has thrilled millions of radio and movie fans, is heard in six renditions running the musical gamut from light ballads, written by Rudolf Friml, Gus Hahn, Allie Wrubel and Herb Magidson, to his favorite operas.

Jesse Lasky, who was responsible for first bringing Martini's voice to the screen, produced the picture for RKO Radio.

"Stage Door" Is Thanksgiving Program Here

Announcer: "Stage Door," RKO Radio's tense drama of theatrical life, comes to the Cameron Theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Three famous stars, Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers and Adolphe Menjou, with Gail Patrick in a prominent role, head the cast. Miss Hepburn appears as a society girl who leaves home to throw in her lot with the habitues of a theatrical boarding house to struggle for dramatic recognition, Ginger is a wisecracking damsel who becomes Katharine's room-mate and Menjou shines as a debonair producer, peculiarly susceptible to girlhood's charms. The story's human interest is irresistibly real in its varied lights and shadows, brilliant comedy and ironic tragedy. You see Miss Hepburn attaining her goal of stardom; a less fortunate girl failing to reach the heights of fame and finding oblivion in suicide; Ginger Rogers, volatile and gay; Adophe Menjou mixing business with amours; Gail Patrick as a heartless but bewitching gold-digger. Luxurious night club scenes contrast vividly with the drab interiors of the boarding house, where the petty jealousies and loyal friendships of the girls inmates merge in ever changing waves of colorful realism. As a play, "Stage Door" took Broadway by storm. The wider scope of the camera gives the film version a still greater hold on the public. It has everything it takes to keep an audience spellbound, from acting de luxe to direct heart appeal which moves you intensely! "Stage Door" is a must-be-seen picture! Don't miss it!

Preview Film Is One of Best Night Programs

"Fight For Your Lady," a picture already hailed by pre-view audiences as one of the season's most amusing and original films, comes to the screen of the Cameron Theatre Saturday. It is a comedy romance which scientillates with fast action and big-laugh episodes.

The fun starts right from the beginning at the ringside of a wrestling-match in London, England, when a wrestler who has agreed to "lie down," changes his mind at the crucial moment and wins, instead of losing. This leads, not to the usual complications of vengeance by a racketeer mob, but to bankruptcy for his broke manager. So the latter switches his managerial abilities to the handling of an American concert singer, while the wrestler finds solace in the companionship of the singer's fiancee, an actress of gold-digging proclivities.

The action then shifts from London to Budapest, where a famous duellist and a pretty feminine night club entertainer cross the singer's path. With the result that the vocal star finds himself matched for a sword combat with the formidable duelist, from which he has scant chance of emerging alive.

Heading the players are John Boles and Jack Oakie who are costarred, Margot Grahame and Ida Lupino, featured. Erik Rhodes portrays the sentimental though blood-thirsty duellist, whose softer feelings overcome his eagerness to dispatch his adversary with a sabre, when appealed to by a phoney "Old Mother" of the latter, who is really a male pal of the intended victim, in disguise. The picture was directed by Ben Stoloff, and produced for RKO Radio by Albert Lewis.

YOEMEN WIN 2ND PLACE IN DISTRICT

Although Champions do not repeat Coach Wood's Yoemen on last Friday night in freezing weather won from Rosebud Panthers 13 to 6, and captured second place in the district.

It took a last minute desperate play to score the winning touchdown. The Yoemen were swept down the field a moment later when Rosebud completed a 50 yard pass. The gun stayed off a touchdown. The most sensational play of the game was an 80 yard run by a Panther back who took Wylie's side line punt down the field without interference from any of the Yoemen who were caught off guard and moved about bewildered as the Panthers formed the scort for the speeding back.

Kennon, injured in the last two minutes of play, was taken from the game. Harry Hughes took the ball on a series of line plays and ran it over for a touchdown. Wylie kicked goal and the game was saved for the Yoemen.

The first touchdown of the game came in the first quarter of the game when Kennon took the ball on a sweeping end run and took it over 15 yard for the first counter. The score was tied an moment later when the 80 yard run netted one for the Panthers.

people to meet it, or lose its proportion of the Federal levy.

Thus a sort of vicious circle is created, from which the states can hardly escape. For if any state does not match the Federal aid offered, it must still pay its proportion of the Federal tax, and see it go to states which do. By this system a club is placed in the hands of the Federal government with which to virtually force each tate to match government funds, whether it can afford to do so or not.

In practice, so-called Federal aid is merely a bureaucratic scheme for coercing the states into bankruptcy, to keep the Federal government company in its similar condition.

Some interesting facts concerning the relation of worker to horsepower in different industrices are contained in the report of a recent study which compares the number of employees required in utilizing certain blocks of electric power in three types of industrial plants located in Alabama.

The three plants selected for this comparison were a hosiery mill in Decatur, a steel plant in the Birmingham district, and a carbide plant in the Sheffield area, whose maximum demands for power are stated to be 200 kilowats, 90,000 kilowatts, and 40,000 kilowatts, respectively. Expressed in terms of horsepower, these figures would equal 267 for hosiery, 120,000 for steel and 53,333 for carbide.

According to the study mentioned, the hosiery mill's 267 horsepower would provide for 500 employees, thus requiring only 53 horsepower per employee.

The greatest power requirement per employee is seen in the carbide plant, whose 53,333 horsepower would provide for only 300 employees, the demand being 177.77 horsepower per worker.

Comparing the two extremes, it may be seen that the 53,333 horsepower required for 300 carbide employees would supply enough power to operate 200 hosiery mills each employing 500 men and women, or a total of 100,000 workers. Stated another way, the carbide plant will absorb 335 times as much power per employee as the small hosiery mill.

Thus it is shown that the value of a given industry to a community may not be determined by the amount of power used, but by the number of people the power is capable of putting to work.

It is surprising to learn that the water bill of American railroads is 50 million dollars a year, but it is true, according the President Ralph Budd of the Burlington, who also declares that most of this expense could be saved through the use of Diesel locomotives.

Although the Diesel engine was first patented 45 years ago, its adaptation to locomotives is of very recent date. Since the Burlington Zephyr and similar trains of other roads began their epochal performances about three years ago a considerable number of Diesel locomatives have been built and placed in service.

H. L. Hamilton, president of the Electric-Motive Corporation, declares that Diesel engines may be fueled at one-fourth the expense incurred with steam locomotives. It is said that the use of 3,000 diesels in swithching service alone would make possible another saving of more than 50 million dollars.

With the greatly increased operating expenses faced by the railroads, including higher costs of materials, fuel and labor, besides an ever mounting tax burden, their plight is most serious.

Diesel locomotives may play an important part in solving the pressing problem of what is going to happen to the railroads. And that problem is one which concerns all the people of the United States.

Cameron Teachers To Houston Thanksgiving

Cameron school teachers will be in Houston Thursday for the convention of Texas State Teachers Association, according to E. A. Perrin who was among the number to attend the preliminary meeting in Waco last Wednesday.

H. H. Brister of the Waco schools was nominated at the Waco meeting for President of the Texas association. The election will occur in Houston, when the Texas teachers meet on Thanksgiving day.

Mr. Perrin presided at the Waco meeting and will head the delegation to the Houston meeting with the hope of bringing about the election of Brister.

Thanksgiving Day headquarters for Aggies "exes" will be in the college YMCA and for the University "exes" will be in the college Assembly Hall.

Two of the largest college bands in the country will play and march before, during and after the game. Both the Aggie and Longhorn bands will muster close to 200 men into uniform.

Thanksgiving Day entertainment will get under way in earnest Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock when the Aggie Fish and the Longhorn Yearlings, freshman teams, tangle on Kyle Field. The Aggie senior class will have its traditional "elephant" walk later in the afternoon.

The Aggie and Longhorn polo teams will clash Thursday morning. The Aggie senior class will sponsor dances in the college dining hall Wednesday and Thursday nights with the Aggieland Swing Band playing.

All rooms in the Aggieland Inn on the campus and in three hotels in Bryan five miles to the North have been reserved for months.

Aggie officials have made extensive preparations to care for the crowd. The cadet corps will have its Thanksgiving dinner Wednesday and will have sack lunches Thursday in order that the huge dining hall may be opened to serve the public from 11 until 1 o'clock.

The regular number of public eating establishments near the campus probably will be supplemented by a number of small "hot dog" stands.

A special stadium entrance, ticket booth and parking area will be opened South of Kyle Field for the game. Huge 18-foot sign will be erected on both the new and old branches of state highway No. 6 directing fans to this area.

The new South parking area, together with the big college drill field North of the stadium, will afford more than enough free parking space within a block of the stadium entrance.

E. W. Hooker, Aggie ticket manager, has announced that there will be plenty of tickets available for fans who wait until they arrive on the campus before buying them. He expects the crowd to total 30,000 and the Kyle Field concrete horseshoe will seat more than 33,000.

language and living habits portrayed in the picture perfectly in keeping with actual habits of the period. Known as one of the foremost authorities on Americana before, during and after the Civil War, Beymer established himself with a series of articles in Harper's Magazine, which were illustrated by Howard Pyle. The articles were the result of a two-year research, in which Beymer consulted confidential war department documents, talked to survivors of the war and obtained information from government officials.

The story of "High, Wide and Handsome" is laid against a background of the days of the first oil boom in the country, at Titusville, Pennsylvania.

Its setting is actually the home to Beymer. His home was just across the river from the birthplace of Billy Smith, the man who pumped the first oil to the surface in this country, and many of the native accounts of the boom days are stored up in Beymer's memory. These memories, plus his studies of the period enabled him to be of invaluable assistance to director and writers of the film, and were largely responsible for the great faithfulness to fact that shows in the completed picture.

The story of the film is concerned with the romance of Irene Dunne and Randolph Scott, whose love story is embellished by a beautiful score by Jerome Gern, famous American composer. Rouben Mamoulian is the director, and the cast includes Dorothy Lamour, Raymond Walburn, Akim Tamiroff, Elizabeth Patterson, Charles Bickford and Ben Blue.
